

Abstract of the Disclosure

A lining for the combustion chamber of a heating device, particularly a vehicle heating device, includes at least one lining member formed for fuel forwarding by capillary action, with at least one fuel receiving region and a fuel flow guiding arrangement provided in the at least one lining member for influencing the flow direction of the fuel.